

For simplicity's sake, the next flowchart will only depict park() and the paths from that function. All other functions more or less give some exposition to the story and are not essential to the plot.

The section functions are not in the actual code, but I separated it from the park function for ease of use.

